Shared Memoirs

all the gray you turned into colors...

Hey you,

I was talking with jess the other day and she told me that her and terry found the ticket stubs to the very first movie we went to together. Remember it was simone that really stupid movie, and there was nobody in the theater except us and another couple. Those were the good days. We just wanted to add that memory. Love You.

andrew you are an amazing person. when i used to hang out with michelle you would always make us laugh.you have such a big heart and you have touched everyone you have ever known we miss you greatly.

Well I have sooo many great memories of all of us together. I was always at your house expecially after Michelle and I would get out of school. One of the best memories that I have is when Michelle and I went and bought you your video camera so that way you could video tape Hannah's Delievery. She was so excited to get it and give it to you. Then the night she went into labor all of us sitting in the hospital waiting and you playing with your new video camera making jokes about wanting to video tape the whole thing. You always made us laugh and every memory bring a smile to our face. To this day Terry, Michelle and all the old group talk about all the great memories. WE MISS YOU AND LOVE!!

Well I have so many memories I could share. But the most treasured memory of mine is when our little girl enter the world on dec. 22, 2002. From that day on andrew loved hannah and when he came back home from being on the road they were unseperable... I am thankful to have known such an awesome young man. He taught me so many things in life. I will forever cherish him.. I love you andrew.
